FOUNDER AND DESIGNER

BoniZulu is a fashion diary , an embodiment of my creativity and an outlet through which I connect with people. I aim to create space for my clients to embrace their true essence through versatile, urban garments that radiate confidence, style and exclusivity.

This isn't just a fashion brand; it's a lifestyle, a community, and a testament to the power of self-expression through clothing.

Welcome to the BZ family,
where style meets soul!!!

Lets start from the begining

As a child, I was captivated by Zena, a character who embodied strength, confidence, and unyielding determination. She transformed into a formidable warrior whenever she donned her leather fighting attire, exuding an aura of toughness and undeniable sexiness. This indelible image inspired the use of leather in our collection, a material that represents resilience, empowerment, and a touch of daring all

PROJECT 1

Mesh Moments: Delicate black mesh integrated into tops, dresses, and accessories, adding an element of softness and allure.

Tribal Touches: Black and white tribal patterns woven into the fabric, celebrating African urbanism and cultural heritage.

Leather Accents: From jackets to skirts, our leather pieces are designed to make a bold statement, reflecting the strength and confidence of Zena

Softness and Sensuality

To balance the strength of leather, we introduce the delicate texture of black mesh. This fabric adds a layer of softness and sensuality, creating a harmonious blend of toughness and tenderness. It allows the wearer to feel both powerful and graceful, embodying the duality of the modern goddess.

The Modern Muse

This collection is designed for the modern individual who is unafraid to step out of the ordinary and into the spotlight. It is for those who exude confidence, elegance, and fierceness in every aspect of their lives. Whether commanding a boardroom, gracing a social event, or embracing a moment of solitude, our garments empower you to embrace your inner warrior and radiate your unique beauty and strength.

"I see people more like celebrities at this point," she says. "It's being able to get to know people I have admired from afar and actually recognizing them." She seems to have given her the chance to "dream bigger than Cinderella story." Which seems apt: there is something about her that makes her look like a princess. You could easily picture her becoming this generation's Grace Kelly. "Yeah, right," she says. "Where's my Prince Charming?" That may be Kushner, a founder of the investment firm which works with a number of prominent real-estate family in New York. Jared is married to Ivanka Trump. to see how.

It was while co-founding a dating app that she found out that circle, but she knew geo-locating dating apps like Grindr and OkCupid were not the solution. Her research told her one percent of users were looking for serious hook-ups. Women want to meet other women but they don't necessarily want to sleep with them the first time they meet. "The way women are completely different," she says. "A woman is going to drop everything to meet a stranger in a bar if she doesn't have her date outfit on. She just doesn't feel good."

The reason HER has been so successful (it is ready operational in New York, London and throughout California, and has funding from Silicon Valley investors) is precisely because it has been created by a woman who understands the nuances of same-sex dating from the inside, rather than a techie looking for a business opportunity. Exton identifies as bisexual, and in her case, coming out to her parents aged 24 was remarkably uncomplicated. "I just told my mother I was dating a woman and she said, 'Cool!' I never considered it a big deal." Exton was working at a branding agency in London when inspiration for HER struck. After quitting her job, she did everything from transcribing to bar work until securing investment.

Now 28, and despite having no tech experience, Exton's approach is clearly working. The app celebrated its first wedding before it had even reached its first birthday, and Exton has received countless emails from users thanking her for helping them find a life partner. She has been single for the past five years, however, and even she concedes that computer algorithms aren't the only solution: "HER takes away barriers. It allows women to make smarter decisions. But until you're eye to eye and skin to skin, you can't gauge the chemistry."

to the brain. Even slight changes in microbial status in the gut can have a direct effect on the brain, which, in turn, alters production of the hormones affecting your appetite.

Meanwhile, clinical studies continue to research the effects of probiotics on obesity. Obese subjects given 10 billion Lactobacillus acidophilus daily over six weeks lost 10 percent of their body mass by an average of 1.5 kilograms.

Blaser's team has also published powerful work showing that children who receive antibiotics in early life may become fat. "Over-prescription of antibiotics and over-reliance on cesareans (which means the baby doesn't ingest bacteria from the birth canal needed at the start of life) are problems that urgently need resolution," he says.

You can't always avoid antibiotic use, so we should think about how best to build our gut flora once we are finished a course. Many mainstream doctors now recommend taking a course of probiotic supplements afterwards. As Swift says, "We have to take care of our microbial garden. Fiber is fertilizer for the community." It's simple really. Look after your gut and they'll love you right back.

PROJECT 2

In a world where fashion meets functionality, our latest tracksuit set takes inspiration from the timeless elegance of cricket uniforms, infused with modern urban flair. This isn't just an outfit; it's a statement of style, comfort, and sophisticated athleticism. Welcome to the intersection of sport and city chic.

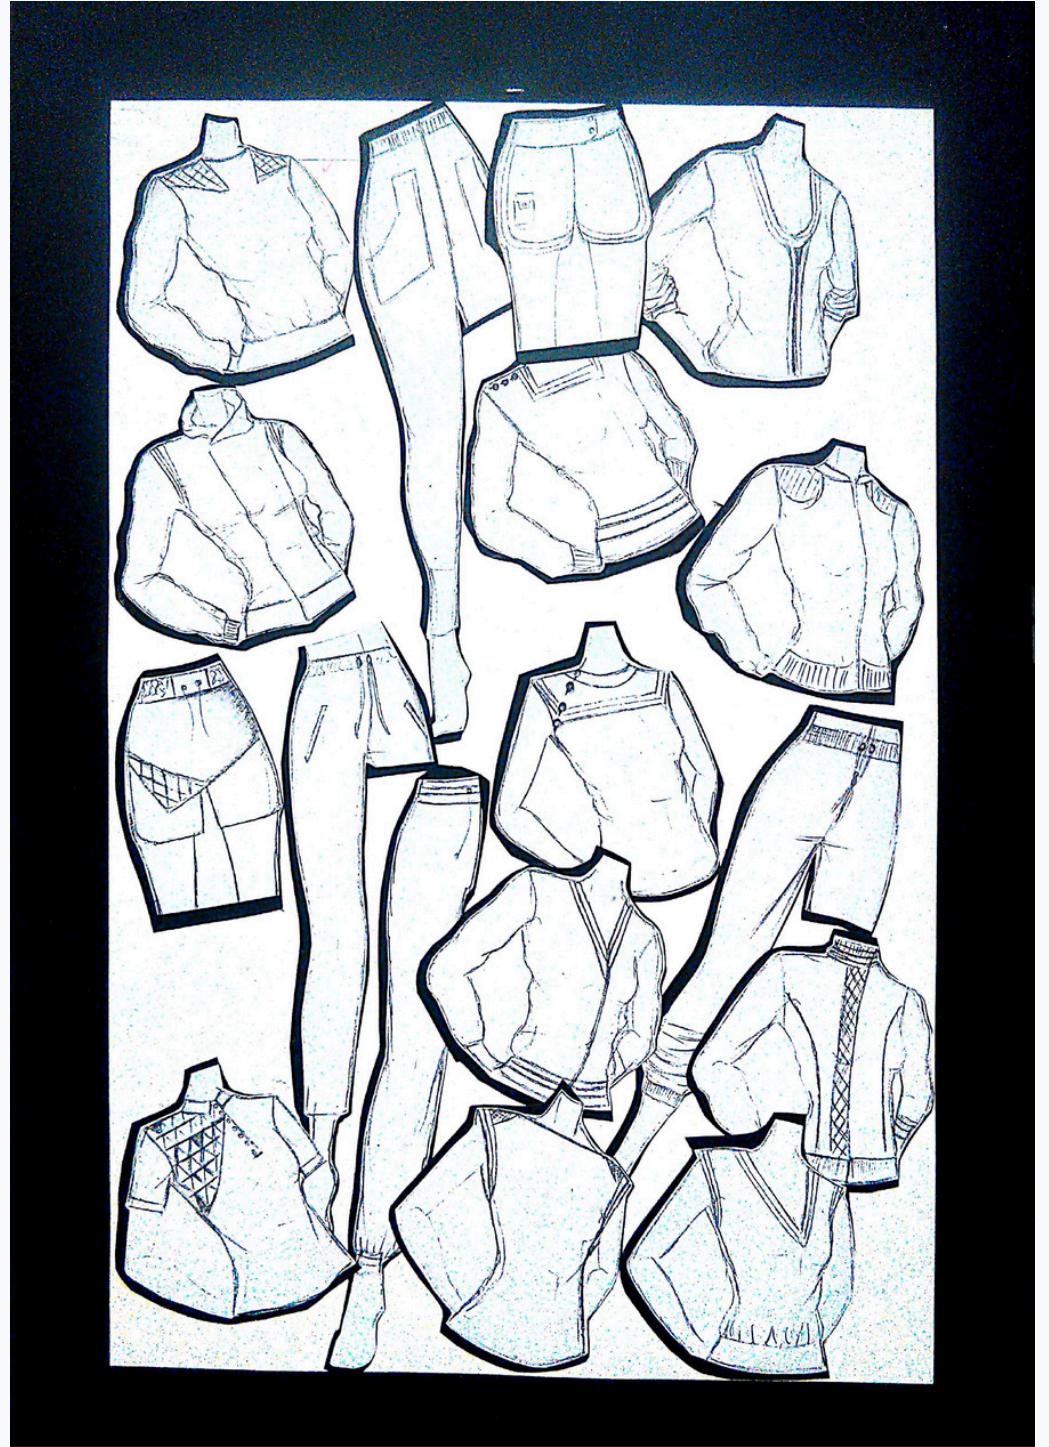

The crisp, clean lines of traditional cricket uniforms have always symbolized discipline, precision, and a subtle elegance. Our tracksuit set embraces this aesthetic, incorporating the classic colors of white and blue. These hues exude freshness and serenity while maintaining a sporty edge. The white base reflects purity and simplicity, while the blue accents add a dynamic touch, evoking the limitless sky and the deep sea.

Drawing from the urban landscape, this tracksuit set is inspired by the sleek lines and towering silhouettes of modern skyscrapers. The design features streamlined lines that run seamlessly along the body, creating a look that is both structured and fluid. These lines mimic the vertical grandeur of tall buildings, conveying a sense of ambition and forward momentum.
